Thinking Out Loud

H. M. L.

As pointed out by David Lawrence, President Roosevelt still believes in pump priming. Thinly veiled is Lawrence's opinion that we are headed for another depression. If and when it comes, economists will probably decide long years after it is over, that the pump priming was too lavish, that it required more water to prime the pump than the well would yield by working the pump. The national debt is now 37 billion dollars. Of this 17 billion roughly has been pump priming. The elements of the problem are really simple.

The government finding the pump needs priming, borrows wherewithal to do it. The government then proceeds to levy taxes to repay pump priming loans. The heavy load of taxes slows up the man who works the pump, that is the tax payer. The tax burden handicaps his endeavors. Accordingly we have less water from the pump and the only recourse after once starting the pump priming practice on an extravagant scale is to provide more priming by loans and taxation.

Thus we are caught in a vicious circle. It would seem now as if our pump primers should have tapered off on the priming a couple of years ago. Granting that vast expenditures of borrowed money did start business machinery, did enable the pump workers to resume something like normal production, there comes the nice question of when a balance should be struck. The pump, it seems, adjusted to much priming refuses to produce unless the priming is liberally continued. Thus the country has grown to depend on the priming rather than upon the production of the pump.

The Administration having created a vast army of non-producers, dependent, both in the rank and file in its leadership, upon Federal money to exist, finds that army constantly shoving its creator forward to further expenditures of borrowed money. Moreover these parasites have grown to prefer the government's easy jobs to private employment as is illustrated by such incidents as that in Sacramento, where the WPA army refused to pick hops, until they were peremptorily given no choicce.

There are certain diseases of humanity that are a long time in culminating. Tuberculosis, for instance, may be years in slowing the vital enegry of its victim. To cure it will require years of patient treatment. A transient resumption of energy, a showing of good health may be brought about by some such expedient as a "shot in the arm," or a glass of stimulant two or three times a day. But these expedients are not cures. Thus with our national economy.

To say anything good of President Hoover's regime is probably to invite curses. But Hoover's theory of economic recovery in a capitalistic democracy, was to encourage and protect the employer so that he could in turn meet his payrolls, maintain his working forces intact and gradually weather the storm. It was a long arduous route but in retrospect it seems sounder. Opposed to this is the Roosevelt theory of using government credit to attain quick results. Vast government expenditures of borrowed money went into immediate circulation and produced what approximated a boom. The mere threat of curtailing these expenditures now produces a violent reaction reflected in the stock market, though actually expenditures of borrowed government funds have not been much curtailed. The first "shot in the arm" calls for another shot, and another. To break what has come to be an addiction now requires heroic treatment. Dr. Roosevelt's cure may easily prove worse than the disease. Time alone can tell the story.

We believe that congressional leaders are at length awake to the need of drastic action to save the country from another tail spin. Whether those who have opposed the President in his design to centralize governmental powers in his hands, will still oppose him in further attemps to seize power, both in contemplated reforms and in his government reorganizationn plan, will presently be revealed in the session of Congress that opens November 15. Indications are that the President will confront a majority in Congress opposed to most of his plans. If this proves to be the case, it will be hailed by all intelligent citizens as a sign of returning sanity and health in national affairs, and may even avert the depression that now threatens.

Young Thug Tries To Rob Woman of Purse

A bold attempt at purse snatching last night on Broad street was frustrated by the screams of a woman. Mrs. William Holland, who resides at the corner of Cottage and Broad street was walking home with Mrs. M. E. Henry when in front of the E. J. N. Ott home, a young man approached the two from the rear and attempted to snatch Mrs. Holland's purse. When he failed to get it, he seized her and threw her off the side walk. The curb at that point is high and the fall injured Mrs. Holland's arm.

Mrs. Henry in telling her experience declared that at first when she saw the young man apparently putting his arm around Mrs. Holland, she thought he was some friend or relative. But when Mrs Holland was thrown to the street, Mrs. Henry began to scream for help. The robber then fled down Cottage street. Mrs. Henry helped Mrs. Holland to her home and immediately phoned Garfield Robson. Robson given a description of the young man took up the trail and intercepted him on Pine street below the court house. At first he denied all knowledge of the attempted robbery. But Robson confronted him with Mrs. Henry, who positively identified him. He finally confessed. He gave his name as Kenneth Cowls and stated that he lived in Grass Valley. He said he was 19 years old. He was lodged in the new city jail and will be arraigned sometime today.

COUNTY ROAD TAX DEBATED BY CHAMBER

Means of securing more money for improving the county roads were discussed Monday evening at a meeting of the Nevada City Chamber of Commerce. Supervisors Cary Arbogats and Alex Robertson were present during the discussion and gave their opinion of plans which were proposed. Supervisor Arbogast stated that no road tax could be legally levied on property in incorporated cities, and that one district could not levy a road tax for the improvement of its own roads. A road tax, he intimated must be county wide.

Neither supervisors expressed any desire to impose such a tax. It was suggested by George Calanan that in event a tax were levied, practically three fourths of the amount raised would be paid by the mines and the utilities. Attention was called to the fact that Placer county in general has a large mileage of improved surfaced roads and that farm values are higher than in this county with its six or seven hundred miles of partly improved and rough country roads. It was suggested that an attempt be made to secure a cross section of public opinion regarding a road tax proposal. Supervisor Robertson declared that people in his district at the east end of the county generally regarded their taxes as high enough.

Further consideration of the matter was postponed until a later meeting.

AIRDALE DOG SAVES LIFE OF AGED MASTER

An intelligent airdale dog last night undoubtedly saved the life of Cecil Hodkinson, a miner 75 years old near Freeman's crossing on the Middle Yuba. Hodkinson, in the dusk, fell off a steep bank into a ravine. Are Airdale finding he could not tug his master into an erect position, tore out to the highway and attempted to jump on runing boards of passing cars. At length Dr. David R. Hadden of Berkeley came along with three or four friends in a car, and his interest in the curious behavior of the dog was aroused. He stopped, climbed out and followed the eager dog to where the old man lay in the ravine. He brought him back to North San Juan where first aid was given, and then on into Grass Valley where the old man was taken to the Jones Memorial hospital.

NOR. SAN JUAN WILL ENTERTAIN HYDRAULIC MEN

By KATHERINE BRAITHWAITE

Director W. E. Clerkin has announced that all plans are completed for the California Hydraulic Miner's Association meeting which will be held in North San Juan Saturday evening, (tomorrow) November 7.

Clerkin reports that Major Harris of the United States army engineer corp will be present at this meeting, also Fred Harvey of the California Debris Commission, director, Lou Eichler of Marysville, Judge Don Bass of Roseville, director, I. E. Rose of Roseville, W. G. Allen of Smartville beside the faithful standbys, C. E. Clark of North Bloomfield, Ross Taylor of Downieville, and Loyal Freeman of the Grass Valley Chamber of Commerce.

These well known mining men will be present at this meeting to acquaint the members of this region as well as the public with all phases of the progress now being made on the debris dam on the upper Narrows of the Yuba river It is sincerely hoped that the dam will be well under way by the middle of 1938.

As in the days of the Civil War strife when the hydraulic mines poured forth their treasure and contributed in no small way to the preservation of the Union, the gravel mines on the Ridge may be destined to help materially in ending the next national depression.

Capital from all parts of the nation, especially from New York, Los Angeles and San Francisco is taking hold of both the old and new properties and they are obtaining remarkably good prospects. The gravel and claim owners are looking eagerly forward to the completion of the Yuba river dam and the renewed mining activity that is bound to follow.

Wade Oden, chairman of the North San Juan unit has promised to bring his fiddle to the meeting Saturday evening and accompanied on the accordion by John Murphy will furnish music for those who wish to dance and spend the evening on the famous North San Juan Ridge.

CURFEW SHALL RING TONIGHT COUNCIL ORDERS

At the meeting of the City Council last evening it was decided to place the letters, "Chamber of Commerce" over the door that the public might find the new headquarters in the city hall. City Judge Miles Coughlin will also hold court there. The Native Sons donated their vacant lot back of their building occupied by the Rose Fashion Shop, as a parking space for business men's automobiles. City officials will level the lot as a parking place.

The P. T. A. appeared before the City Council and asked resumption of the curfew ordinance. When the bell rings city police are requested to send home any child found upon the streets after nine o'clock.

The city council decided to buy a general utility truck for light service. The three tall poplar trees on Union alley will have to be cut it was decided. Forest service experts have examined the trees and found them badly rotted and highly dangerous to traffic. Any strong wind might send them crashing down. It is proposed to widen the street when the trees are removed.

VALLEY MINES PLAN TO EXPLORE LOWER LEVELS

F. L. Cole, mining man who is interested in Valley Gold Mines, Inc. operating in the Willow Valley district east of Nevada City, stated last week that operations of the company may be suspended temporarily pending the completion of arrangements for a comprehensive program of development. The men were laid off the end of last week. The corporation has had the St. Louis, Lecompton, Bellefontaine and Posey mines under lease for the past two years and has done considerable work in the upper levels. Work of equipping the properties has been completed and the mill placed in operating condition. All equipment will be kept intact during the period of suspension. Future plans will call for a more complete and systematic development of the area and the opening of the properties at greater depth.

Little Girl Accidentally Shot By Her Brother

Charles Dougherty, fourteen years old, one of seven young brothers and sisters accidentally shot his baby sister, Evelyn, two and a half years old, while she was watching him clean his 22 rifle yesterday morning. He had taken the gun apart and was putting it together when the cartridge exploded.

The accident happened while the family, traveling in two cars, were stopping for lunch on the Marysville road, about three miles south of Grass Valley. The child was brought to the Jones Memorial hospital where it was ascertained the bullet had entered her abdomen and emerged from her back. Her brother did not know the gun was loaded.

The boy was devoted to his little sister and was heart broken. The little girl fell to the ground after the shot and began crying. The other children picked her up, ascertained that she was shot and a woman driving by, took the child in and brought her to Grass Valley. The condition of the child is serious but it is believed the wound may not prove fatal.

Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Dougherty and their children travel from town to town making and selling rustic furniture of willow and manzanita.

Sheriff Carl Tosiabsen made a detailed investigation of the accident.

FILM STORY OF SCANDINAVIA IS SHOWN ROTARY

Moving pictures of Scandinavia were the feature of yesterday's Rotary program. They were taken by Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Kjorlie during their summer's tour in Norway and Sweden.

C. O. Brown of Sunnyside Greenhouses was elected a member of the club. Andrew Larsen, chairman of the Rotary Scout committee, exhibited the two new flags which have been purchased for the use of the new troop sponsored by the club, and the club directors gave $21 to match another $21 given by the Native Sons, sponsors of the first Nevada City troop, toward the completion of the addition to Seaman's lodge which is now nearly ready for occupancy.

It was announced that next Tuesday evening the Rotary Scout troop will receive its flags and its charter at a ceremonial to be held in Seaman's lodge. Scoutmaster Elmer Marriott and Wallace Lewis will muster every scout in their organization and members of the sponsoring organizations and the Scout Council are expected to turn out in force for this gala occasion.

Prior to showing his moving picture scenes of Norway and Sweden. Mr. Kjorlie gave a brief sketch of the political and topographic aspects of the two countries. Norway which has two languages has recently decided to compromise between the two and make the compromise the national language to be taught in the schools. One language used by the upper classes and the official world is very similar to the Danish. The other is used by the laboring and rural population, and since the recent labor victory at the polls that party has insisted and enacted laws that will combine the two languages.

Climatically, Mr. Kjorlie said, Norway is considerably warmer than Sweden due to the influence of the Gulf Stream and the barrier presented by a sub-oceanic reef which cuts off cold currents from the Artic. High mountains of Sweden's western boundary shut out the benign influence of the Gulf Stream.

Some of the Norwegian fiords are a hundred miles long, narrow and extremely deep. Both Norway and Sweden have tremendous resources in timber and falling water. Sweden has the largest iron mines in the world and these for the past two or three years have been operated at full capacity, due to war preparations in England, France and other countries of Europe.

Trade treaties made by Norway with Italy and Spain, particularly, are having an influence on the habits of the people. Italy especially insists that in exchange for fish and lumber Norway shall take more wines, olives and oranges, and actually the consumption of these commodities has been increasing. Swedish iron, steel, and iron ores are shipped to all parts of the world due to their premier quality.

The pictures, some of them in colors were of a highly interesting and scenic character. The life the people lead, the character of their transportation, their beautiful buildings and the essentially Norse type of architecture in the older structures, were especially note worthy. A church built of timber over 800 years old was shown. The Scandinavian love of sports, especially those of winter, was revealed in a series of beautiful scenes.

NURSING SERVICE OF RED CROSS IS ENDOWED FOR '38

Edgar T. Zook, secretary of the Grass Valley Memorial Hospital, notified Lynne Kelly, president of the Grass Valley Red Cross Chapter, that the Red Cross nursing service for Nevada City, Grass Valley and the western part of Nevada county. The notification was accompanied by a check for $3,000 for carrying on the work Actual construction of the hospital, Mr. Zook wrote, will begin next spring. In the meantime substantial roads are being built into the site, formerly the Prisk ranch. It is adjacent to the golf club grounds. Plans are now practically completed and contracts for steel and foundations are soon to be let.

Thus far, all the funds of the hospital have been donated by Mr. and Mrs. Errol MacBoyle. The directors are: Errol MacBoyle, Carl P. Jones, G. S. Borden, Albert Crase and Edgar T. Zook. Dr. Jones is the president of the Grass Valley Memorial Hospital with G. S. Borden, vice president and Mr. Zook, secretary.

CHIMNEY FIRE CAUSES UNUSUAL EXCITEMENT

A fire alarm was turned in from the top of Boulder street from the new box 51 at about 7:30 Wednesday eve. Both fire trucks and firemen responded but before the second truck got to the foot of Boulder street several sight seeing citizens as well as firemen were in line ahead of the truck. A steady stream of about 70 cars closely followed the fire truck. The fire it is stated was a chimney fire and must have been out by the time the trucks reached the top of the hill. Cars continued a steady procession up the street meeting the returning trucks only to turn and come back. Several minutes after the trucks had been in the fire houses the machines continued to pour out to the fire, turn and come back, making a two way lane of heavy traffic.

It is against the city ordinance for spectators to pass or go ahead of a fire truck A few precious seconds lost through spectators crowding to the fire would cause the loss or far more serious damage than if they were not hampered. The fire men serve without pay and always respond willingly to every call. The fire truck Wednesday evening was packed with firemen.

Those Who Create

Without an economic system which offers rewards to those who work and create, America would not be setting the pace for the world.

That is the belief of Charles R. Hook, president of the American Rolling Mill Company. In an address before the American Life Insurance convention in Chicago, he said:

"When you look at your alarm clock you see only the hands and figures on the dial. You do not see that main spring, or that tiny motor, deep down inside.

"There is a main spring deep down inside America too. It is the incentive to work and create, to share in the profits of one's work.

"Without this incentive to the individual America would not have developed her natural resources; we would not have our great factories, our magnificent public institutions and our high standard of living."

As proof that the American incentive system has worked, he pointed out that the United States today has 71 per cent of the world's automobiles, 58 per cent of its telephone and telegraph facilities, 50 per cent of its radios and 38 per cent of its railroads.

The Duke Will See

Every man is naturally proud of his accomplishments, and doubly proud when, by comparison, his accomplishments are shown to excel those of his neighbor.

That comparison is about to be made. The Duke of Windsor is coming to America to study the "American Way," particularly the wages and living standards of the working peoples.

In a German tool factory, one described as the "industrial pride of the German government," the Duke recently found that workers were earning 10 cents per hour—$4.80 per week.

Everyone knows what this royal visitor will find in America; The world's highest wage scale, the world's highest living standard, the world's shortest working week—14,000,000 families owning their own homes.

Isn't that reason to be proud of the "American Way?" Is there any better and more convincing argument for preservation of the American system of private enterprise?

Government and Business

(From the New York Times)

There is no reason to believe that sober-minded business men are looking to the government now for an act of omnipotence or the performance of a feat of magic. What business really needs, as it attempts to check the recession which is now in progress, is not some new kind of unexpected intervention by the government, but rather a lifting of unnecessary handicaps which government has already imposed upon it.

Some of these handicaps are to be found in regulatory measures which have overshot the mark of protecting the public interest and become essentially punitive in character. Others are to be found in the crushing weight of taxation under which business is now forced to work its way uphill.

PINE NUT MINE

Preparations are going forward for a winter run at the Pine Nut mine on the American river. Prospecting is being done and milling ore assays about $15 per ton. Plans call for a 200 foot shaft and then drift. Three men are now employed. Frank Crampton of Nevada City is engineer for San Francisco interests developing the property.

JUST WONDERIN'

I wonder why the poets write
So many odes to Spring,
Yet seldom symbolize the joys
Which Summer days may bring;
And when bright Autumn fills the land
With beauties all her own
Why do the rhymsters cease to rhyme
Till winds of Winter moan?
Till winds of Winter moan?

"I wonder," said a dear friend to me, "why there are so few poems about Autumn." Together we were enjoying an October day which was rare as any day in June could ever be; warm sunlight filtered down to us through the spangled branches of incense cedars, autumnal tints of russet, red and yellow embellished every scene, quail piped from the hill, wild birds chattered, and every little wandering breeze came freighted with spicy odors from bright October woods. The season's regal gifts of loveliness encompassed us; why then were there so few poems which expressed all this in rythmic human speech?

Of course there must be many poems about Autumn; but try upon the spur of the moment to recall a few of them and find if your success will be greater than was ours.

As my own contribution to this interesting symposium, I shall quote one stanza taken from that exquisite poem, Each in His Own Tongue—and may memory play no tricks.

"A haze on the distant horizon,
The infinite, tender sky,
The rich, ripe tints of the corn fields
And wild geese wheeling high;
And all over lowland and upland
The gleam of the golden rod,
Some of us call it—'Autumn,'
And others call it—'God."

And now in lighter vein, Bill Nye's nonsense lines:

"The Autumn leaves are falling—
They're falling everywhere,
They're falling in the atmosphere
And likewise in the air."

I wonder if this is a fair exchange and no robbery—England takes Colonel Lindberg and we acquire Ex-King Edward.

I wonder, considering the erratic behavior of the human race, if it has now struck rock bottom, or is perchance, still falling.

Uncle Silas says, "if you buy what you don't need, you'll need what you can't buy;" but what with styles, manners and customs changing at a moment's notice, how may one determine what he does need? —A. MERRIAM CONNER.

TEN YEARS AGO TODAY

(From Nugget of November 7, 1927)

As early as 1857, North San Juan took steps to educate the children that had settled in that vicinity, and opened a public school. There were few families there at that time and the number of children of the age then considered a proper school age was small, yet, few, as they were, they needed and deserved the benefits of a public school as much as the children of larger towns.

A school house was built on the north side of Flume street, on mining ground and near the brow of a precipice. A few years later, the school was divided into two departments, primary and grammar, the latter using the school house while the primary school was held in a low dingy room in the basement of Odd Fellows hall.

Judge O. P. Stiger and Joseph Lissen having been chosen school trustees in 1868 after a most exciting election, the building of a new school house for the primary department was decided upon and a tax of $2,000 was voted by the citizens. The new building when completed presented a beautiful appearance. The grounds about the building were large and surrounded by a well constructed fence and enhanced by the shade trees and shrubbery.

In 1869 an additional tax of $1,000 was voted for the removal of the grammar school building to the new location. Subsequently by the means of a school exhibition, funds were raised for the construction of a belfry on the building and to secure a school bell.

In 1879 a library room was added to the school. The excellent library contained about 700 volumes of well selected literature. The citizens of North San Juan were largely indebted to Judge O. P S.tiger for their excellent school and fine library.

PRIZE WINNERS

At the benefit card party given to raise money for its charities by Laurel Parlor, N. D. G. W. on Wednesday night in Odd Fellows hall there were twenty three tables filled. Mrs. Theodore Rundy won high score for auction. Mrs. George Noyes of Gold Flat was first in whist while Mrs. Nance James was second. Door prizes were won by Mrs. Tony Costa, first; Miss Teresa Alaria, second and Mrs. Fred Coombs, of Grass Valley, third. Men's prizes in whist and auction went to Will Thompson of Grass Valley and Ernest Peterson of Nevada City, respectively.

30,000 BOXES N. CO. APPLES

Nevada county has an enormous apple crop for the acreage planted and it is expected between 25,000 and 30,000 boxes of Delicious, Jonathan and King David apples will be harvested for market.

The Loma Rica Ranch will have about 9,000 boxes and in the last week or two the demand for their fine apples locally has been improving.

SHEEP MEN FIND COYOTE WAGING VICTORIOUS WAR

By RALPH H. TAYLOR

In one respect, at least, California—despite its thriving industries, its great cities and its national leadership in progressive agriculture—is still a forntier state, fighting the age old battle of the frontier for survival.

Howling defiance at the march of civilization, the coyote still stalks his prey in more than two-thirds of the state's counties.

And if you happen to be a reader of the California Wool Grower, official publication of the California Wool Growers Association, such head lines as "Depredations of Coyotes May Force Sheepmen Out of Business" are more or less commonplace.

The battle between the livestock man and the prairie wolf is a feud which will doubtless continue until the last coyote's pelt has been hung out to dry, but it is a costly war, still far from ended

During the 1936-1937 fiscal year, which ended July 1, predatory animal forces in California, directed by Charles G Poole, district agent of the Division of Game Management, expended $99,657.55 in the unending war of extermination against coyotes, bobcats and other predators. Of this amount, the federal government contributed $29,158.47; the state, $21,304.66, and the various counties and woolgrowers, $49,194.42. (This total does not include bounties paid in various counties, or the cost of huters and trappers employed by individual farmers.)

The number of predators taken by the Biological Survey and the state and counties cooperating, according to Mr. Poole, was the greatest in the history of the work, which was first inaugurated in 1929.

With an average of 62 hunters and supervisory workers employed, the "kill" for the year was reported as follows:

Coyotes	6,962
Bobcats	1,458
Bear	1
Total	8,421

Mr. Poole's report also states that the average cost of sheep killed by predatory animals during the year was $11.47, less the amount received for furs.

Cooperating in the predatory animal control work, which has saved livestock men hundreds of thousands of dollars in losses, are 31 counties, the State Department of Agriculture, the State Chamber of Commerce, the California Fish and Game Commission, various stockmen's organizations, including the California Cattlemen's and Wool Growers Associations, farm cooperatives and the California Farm Bureau.

Independent of expenditures by other agencies, the State Game and Fish Commission spends approximately $40,000 a year in predatory control work, Mr. Poole reports, of which about $10,000 is paid in bounties on mountain lions, and the balance for control of coyotes and bob cats within or adjacent to game reserves.

Another active phase of the predatory control work is the contest carried on each year by the Assaciated Sportsmen of California, which now has 21 clubs killing predators, compared to 9 a year ago. During the first six months of 1937, these clubs have killed 6 mountain lion, 102 bobcats and 124 coyotes.

Hundreds of coyotes and bobcats also are killed each year by farmers and stockmen for which bounties are not paid. Nor is any record available for catches taken by private commercial hunters and trappers.

To city residents, it may be little short of amazing that more than $150,000 per year, counting the expenditures of all agencies, is being spent in California to exterminate predatory animals which are generally associated with primitive days and the wide open spaces. But the expenditure is only a fraction of the losses which otherwise would result. California is still fighting the old fight of the fortier — and doing a vigorous work in protecting its stock men from predatory depredations. But losses are still heavy and the fight must be intensified before it is won.

IN THE WAKE OF FLOOD

This scene was enacted many times in refugee centers established by the Red Cross during the Ohio-Mississippi Valley flood. Inevitably floods bring the danger of disease as drinking sources become contaminated and large groups of people are thrown together. The medical-health service of the Red Cross serves thousands each year, and is maintained by membership funds contributed to the organization at the time of its annual Roll Call from Armistice Day to Thanksgiving.

AVERAGE MOTORIST COSTS PETROLEUM INDUSTRY $490

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—The average value of the automobile driven by the average Mr. Motorist is estimated at only $200, but it costs the petroleum industry more than twice that much (represented by investment), to keep each automobile moving over the Nation's streets and highways.

The American Petroleum Industries Committee reports, after a survey, that the petroleum industry has an investment of approximately $490 for every motor vehicle in the United States—a capital investment of $13,775,000,000 just to keep 28,000,000 motorists supplied with gas, lubricants, service, information and maps.

Mrs. Ed. Martz, wgo underwent an operation in a Grass Valley hospital last week has so far recovered that she is expected to return to her home at Nevada City this week end.

'ROOM SERVICE' HILARIOUS HIT IN SACTO., NOV. 9

SACRAMENTO, Nov. 4.—"Room Service", hilarious New York comedy success, which will be presented at the Sacramento Memorial auditorium for one night only, Tuesday, November 9, has established a record as a laugh producer in every city in which the troupe has played, as well as breaking a Hollywood record.

Produced by George Abbott, the film rights on the satire have been sold to R-K-O Studio for the all-time record high price of $225,000. The comedy, depicting Broadway at it's cuffing best, was written by John Murray and Allen Boretz, well known in Hollywood and New York.

The Abbott success, the fourth comedy riot staged by this producer in three years, is being brought to Sacramento by the Ware-Hazelton management, which is sponsoring the presentation of top-flight stage attractions in Northern California.

Advance seats reservations for the comedy, said to "be even funnier than it's predecessors, "Brother Rat," "Boy Meets Girl," and "Three Men on a Horse," is now being conducted by Ye Music Shoppe, 1014 Tenth street, Sacramento. Mail orders will be accepted. Indications point to a record demand for seats.

"Room Service" deals with the frenzied antics of a fly-by-night theatrical producer, bent on staging his show without a penny to his name. The wiles to which he resorts furnish hundreds of laughs, while the pathos and romance is provided by his helpful girl friend.

The cast includes Clinton Sundberg and Patricia Palmer, who appeared here last season in "Boy Meets Girl," Mary Cheffey, Robert Williams, Joseph Greenwald, Alva King, Matt Briggs and an array of other leading New York performers.

Highlights of the reports are:

Construction of World"s Fair palaces and towers six weeks ahead of schedule.

Many states and foreign nations already signed up to participate.

Exhibit space purchased to date by forty major national firms.

Hundreds of applications for colorful concessions on Midway.

Geared to increasing activity in all departments of pre-exposition operations, the 1939 World's Fair reported new records of accomplishment right along the line.

The Department of Works reported that reclamation of the 400-acre Treasure Island site is 100 per cent complete. Construction of buildings is six weeks ahead of schedule and eleven hundred workmen on island have a total of more than $8,000,000 worth of building work completed or well under way. Storm sewers and drains are being installed and a 3,000,000 gallon reservoir on Yerba Buena Island is nearing completion. Work is due to start on plumbing, ventilating equipment, partitions and interior work on exhibit palaces, and on architectural features of the main courts. Historic Courthouse Rebuilt; Modernized

Nevada county's court house—not 100 per cent new but close to it is an historic old landmark at Nevada City. It has been doubled in size and so changed in appearance that the old timers can hardly believe their eyes.

Yesterday's court house, a three-story structure about 90 feet long by 54 feet wide, typified the architecture of California's days of gold. Its first story had granite walls more than three feet thick and the upper two stories were of brick. A gable surmounted the front; there was an iron grilled balcony over the main entrance, and most of the windows were heavily arched.

Today's is a reinforced concrete building, ultra-modern in design, construction and equipment. Gone are the granite walls, gable, balcony, arched windows and other distinguishing characteristics. In their place are the latest features of metropolitan architecture.

Three additions have been built to the old structure—a new front, 54 feet by 20 feet and four stories high, and one-story wings, 87 feet by 200 feet, on both sides. The whole interior has been remodeled. As a result of all this, the floor space has been increased from 13,000 to 26,000 square feet. All the offices, court rooms and meeting chambers have been considerably enlarged and the county jail, occupying the rear portion of the building, has been expanded and improved to meet federal specifications. The SERA started one wing and the WPA finished it. Lindgren and Swinerton, contractors, erected the other wing and the new front and did the remodeling. George C. Sellon, Sacramento architect, planned and directed the entire job.

In equipment and furnishings the new court house is up to the minute. It boasts the first automatic elevator in the county. It has an electric ventilating system and is piped for future air conditioning. A modern furnace has replaced a dilapidated wood burner. Scientifically designed lighting assures eye comfort and greater efficiency.

These facilities, of course, contrast sharply with the past, especially in the jail. The old cells depended for light and air on tiny slots. 14 inches bq 3 inches, in the 3 foot grantie walls—and there were perforated iron plates over the slots.

Incidentally, one of the county's early day prisoners was "Rattlesnake Dick" Barter, notorious bandit who harassed dozens of gold camps in the "fifties" and whose exciting story was dramatized for one of the P. G. and E. radio programs — Tales of California—broadcast by KGO Sunday evenings at 9:00 o'clock. "Rattlesnake Dick" was captured and locked up in Nevada City in 1856, But he wasn't a prisoner long; he escaped after a few days and took two other men with him. The pursuit ended tragically. A posse, headed by Sheriff W. W. Wright, and Deputy Sheriff David Johnson, mistook another posse for the fugitives and in the ensuing gun battle both Wright and Johnson were killed.

Since Nevada county was created on May 18, 1851, it has built or rebuilt court houses six times. The 1851 version was a crude wooden "shack" in Broad street, then and now Nevada City's main business thoroughfare and the jail a small log cabin nearby. In 1856 a two-story brick structure, including a jail, was erected on the site of the present edifice, but a few weeks after its completion it was destroyed by a disastrous fire that swept a great part of the town. A duplicate was built immediately and it burned in 1863. Then came a larger and more imposing two-story building, with the granite walls that have just passed into history. In 1900 a third story was added, the jail section enlarged and the whole place remodeled. And now the ultra-modern court house.

"JUSTICE" TO BE STAGED IN S. F.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 4.—Next week will be the final week of the Federal Theatre Project's staging of Julian Thompson's ten-strike laugh hit, "The Warrior's Husband" at the Alcazar Theatre. Reservations continue to come from all parts of Northern California, according to the management.

On November 17 the Theatre Project opens with "Justice," by John Galsworthy. Galsworthy is the fourth of a group of world famous living playwrights who have released their work for production by the government players. Inasmuch as "Justice" was the piece that was largely responsible for recognition of Galsworthy as a great playwright and at the same time one of the best plays ever done by him, much interest is being expressed by local theatre goers in its production.

"Justice" will have a cast of the Theatre Project's ace actors, among whom are Will Vedder, Robert Drumm, Leon Forbes, Maurice Hugo, Daniel Pennell, J. Raymond Northcutt, Max West, Robert Clarke, David Cole, Willis West, Crawford Perks, Walter Farnsworth, Edward Ferris, Edward Regan and others. There are twenty four mole characters and one feminine which is played by Alice Hult. Mail reservations are being received.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

By MARY MARTZ

The Girls League is holding a tea dance for the Nevada City high school girls honoring the freshman girls on Wednesday, November 10, after school in the gymnasium. It will be appropriately decorated with autumn leaves under the direction of Edna Doolittle, chairman on decorations. A fine program under Alice Graham's supervision will include such numbers as a tap dance by Margie Clark, song by Georgie Glennon, monologue by Rose Ponticelli, piano solo, Alice Graham and a song by Alice Graham, Madge Pianezzi and Sylvia Moody. Edna Uhrig has charge of refreshments and promises that they will be good. This is the first party for the girls league this year and it will be very appropriate to start off a very active year.

BASKETBALL

The Girls Basketball teams are being organized. The A team is divided into four divisions. The managers are Edna Uhrig, Edna Doolittle, Vella Flindt and Ruth Godfrey. They plan inter-class games after several weeks of practice.

TENNIS

The Girls Singles Tennis tournament ended Wednesday when Ruth Godfrey was victorious over Jean Martz and resumed her former title of championship. Both girls played excellent games. Jean Martz and Ruth Godfrey plan to play the Grass Valley champions in the near future.

OFFICIAL FINDS 95 PER CENT EMPLOYERS FAIR

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—Seventy-five percent of the employers in the United States are "fair, square men who are generous to their employes." 20 per cent are "hard boiled, but straight and square," and only 5 per cent can be classified as "unfair," Charles Johnson Post, United States Labor Department official believes.

Addressing a convention of the Employing Bookbinders of America, Mr. Post, who is an executive in the conciliation division of the Labor Department, charged that the five per cent minority is to blame for all labor difficulties which handicap the guilty and innocent alike.

He added that the problem of economic conditions in the various fields of industry is "a business man's problem and does not rest in the hands of labor."

DEWATERING OF OLD FORTUNA STARTED MON.

Dewatering the old Fortuna or former Live Yankee mine shaft, one mile south of Nevada City on the Nevada City-Grass Valley highway started Monday with J. M. Hoff in charge of operations.

Capt. George A. Nihell of Nevada City was in charge of the Fortuna, once a rich producer, when it closed 30 0years ago and reports are that the ore is in the bottom of the shaft. "DICK" TREMAINE SERVES P. G. & E. 39 YEARS

It came as a surprise to the many friends of Richard Tremaine that he had retired from his work with the Pacific Gas and Electric company on November 1, after serving the company for over 39 years. Although 68 years of age his kindly genial smile and lively manner made him seem years younger and he will be greatly missed about the office, and by the P. G. & E. patrons.

From his employers came words of praise for long faithful years of service in responsible positions as foreman, sub-station manager and in charge of men in construction work.

Mr. Tremaine began work with the company on the construction of the old Rome power house beyond Lake Vera on the Yuba river, north of Nevada City. It was quite a feat to take material, machinery and the equipment down a steep mountain side to construct the buildings. From there he was sent to Colgate to remain several years, then back to Nevada City, and on to the Grass Valley sub station in 1904 where he spent 25 years. From there he was sent to the sub station at Davis, then to Auburn. His last transfer was from Auburn to Nevada City where he has been doing office work and collecting.

He takes a keen delight in traveling about seeing interesting sights and new undertakings and it is the wish of his many friends that he may live long to enjoy many delightful trips in his newly acquired leisure.
